

Human-Centric Leading Practice Labs

a Leaders for Good Series for People Who Want to Expand & Deepen their Leadership Capacity

Description & Benefits

This exciting 6-week series provides you the space, community and exercises to practice using human-centric leading. We'll focus on transforming challenges and concerns to broaden and deepen your capacity to solve team-related challenges and promote a strong and adaptive team culture. You'll have the opportunity for deeper work (than you'd access in a course) to expand your ability to stay calm, grounded and strategic amidst whichever situations you meet at work.

We'll use an online video conference tool that provides the capability to have break-out sessions for dyad/team work. You'll each have a chance to bring your specific challenges, ask questions, practice using the HCL and any other relevant tools, collaborate with each other during/between sessions and benefit from the group's collective intelligence.

Since this is a practice lab, we'll focus on practicing how to deal with different scenarios, so we won't have a pre-designed syllabus. Rather, I'll customize the labs to meet your specific needs using useful reading material, case studies or videos.

Details

- 6-week practice lab series
- live online series with break-out sessions for teamwork
- fees:
 - corporate-reimbursed: $950/series
 - self-pay: $550/series
 - invoices for reimbursement & tax deduction provided
- times: 4:00pm - 6:30pm PST
- dates:
 - Feb 16, Feb 23
 - March 2, March 9, March 16, March 23

To Register

You register for this series by paying, there is no separate process. The fee is payable by Feb 10, 2017 using Paypal via ep@leadersforgood.net. If you have additional questions, feel free to contact me at 415 987 8592.

Eleni Pallas Bio

Eleni Pallas spearheads Leaders for Good, a leadership design boutique with the mission: to empower leaders to expand organizational and societal effectiveness by amplifying human-centric collaboration and innovation. She has global business experience world leading strategic partnership and acquisition projects in the BRICs and emerging markets, as well as equipping change-makers and social activists with the strategic skills and emotional capacity to lead successfully into the unknown. Eleni is codifying the emerging leadership paradigm, calling it human-centric leading and sharing tools such as thought-feeling-behavior triads and using emotions as data. She has an MBA, with honors, from the George Washington University and is certified as an executive coach with the International Coach Federation.

Eleni Pallas • LeadersforGood.net • 415 987 8592 • ep@leadersforgood.net